

ALWAYS FRESH FOOD

Crisp and easily digested, Malta-Vita goes straight from its huge ovens to the many who eat it.

The Malta-Vita Food Co., of Battle Creek, Mich., has adopted a success-story of keeping the public always supplied with fresh Malta-Vita, the perfect food.

When Malta-Vita comes from the ovens it is perfectly digestible, delicious food in the world, containing only 10 per cent moisture. The other 90 per cent is food brain and bone and nerve and muscle tissue, which are easily digested because the gelatinous starch of the wheat is thoroughly cooked; wheat has been converted by fine malt extract into maltose malt sugar.

No other food preparation contains such a high degree of food quality and such a low degree of moisture.

Malta-Vita Company limits orders from every housewife to a quantity which the company knows can be disposed of quickly in the wholesaler's store.

The wholesaler, in turn, makes only such quantities of grocers as he knows they will be able to handle satisfactorily.

Thus the grocer's supply of Malta-Vita is limited, and as a result all that comes from the ovens in the big factory at Battle Creek always the kind that needs in the market.

Malta-Vita is so deliciously refreshing and satisfying that it should be in every home. It is the only perfect food. Best for children and best for grown folks.

At $1.00 per pound, now 10 cents. Same high quality, same big package as when sold for 15 cents.

PROPOSE HOME FOR EMBASSY IN LONDON

Society of Pilgrims Start Fund to Build Permanent English House for American Diplomats.

CHOATE TELLS OF TROUBLES.

United States and Turkey Alone Have No Settled Abode of Their Own in the Capital of Britain.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.
New York, June 10.—Anxious by a vivid description by Joseph H. Choate, former Ambassador to Great Britain, complimentary to whom they had assembled, the Pilgrims last night, at a dinner at the Waldorf Astoria, started a movement to establish a permanent home for the representatives of the United States at the court of King Edward VII.

Charles A. Moore, after the conclusion of the address of Mr. Choate, announced that he would give $500 for such a purpose.

Bishop Potter, president of the society, said he would appoint Mr. Moore, chairman of a committee to be named later, to conduct the campaign, and that the project was carried into effect.

OFFICE OF PILGRIMS.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

I believe that hardly two successive Ministers or Ambassadors of the United States in London have occupied the same residence in the same year, and in my time because the owner naturally enough wanted to live in his own house.

My landlords, the Viceroys of India and the Prime Minister of Great Britain, found a place from which to do that, the States.

But what I maintain is that a great nation like ours should have a house of its own on which to front the world.

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

I believe that hardly two successive Ministers or Ambassadors of the United States in London have occupied the same residence in the same year, and in my time because the owner naturally enough wanted to live in his own house.

My landlords, the Viceroys of India and the Prime Minister of Great Britain, found a place from which to do that, the States.

But what I maintain is that a great nation like ours should have a house of its own on which to front the world.

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,

"Now about the embassy," he added, "I was asked what was the best way to settle the question of the residence of the Bishop. The American Embassy in London looks only one thing."

While all of the other great Powers have an embassy in London, the permanent homes each country provides the United States and Turkey, among half a dozen and some odd exceptions.

MISS MARY MOORE.

It is the object of the Pilgrims, an organization composed of men who travel frequently between this country and England, to promote friendly relations between the two nations.

Mr. Choate, after referring to the era of good feeling which preceded summering up in the expression that between the two great nations of Britain there were no foreign relations,